BOOK REVIEW
WESTMORLAND COUNTY PENNSYLVANIA AREA KEY

Compiled by
FLORENCE CLINT
Reviewed by Margaret Kelley

Florence Clint, a genealogist and researcher saw the need for a guide which would help researchers, especially beginners, in their efforts in locating records. She felt it a great waste of time that each person should have to determine what records were available, where they were located, where were the maps, the histories, newspapers, cemeteries, and the like when it had been done so many times before. In 1970 the author published an "Area Key" for the state of Pennsylvania. It was designed to be used as an aid in locating records which pertained to the state in general. She has now published individual county "Area Keys" which include all available material for each county of Pennsylvania.

Westmorland County is described as a sort of "mother county" for many of the Western counties. The proximity to Allegheny County and to Pittsburgh is of importance to all genealogists as Pittsburgh developed rapidly and Westmorland became dependent upon this development. Therefore, the searcher should become acquainted with the Carnegie Library and the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania in Pittsburgh as well as the Greensburg Public Library and Westmorland-Fayette Historical Society.

Contents of the book include a condensed history of the county, a short sketch of Westmorland County, and a comment on the value of the disputed "Horn Papers" for use in historical and genealogical research. (Vols. 1 and 2, no, no; Vol. 3, yes.) John White Geary was born in Westmorland County and became the first governor after the Civil War. He previously was a territorial governor of "bleeding Kansas" succeeding in stopping the bleeding before returning to Pennsylvania?

Types and dates of court house records are noted along with the hours and days the court house is open. The importance of the key to an index is explained. Six different systems are used in Pennsylvania of which only one is alphabetical. The Russel System is the most popular and an explanation is given.

Books available at the Westmorland Historical Society are listed. Also listed are those at the Carnegie Library in Pittsburg as well as library hours.

Other helps include maps, the locations of newspapers, cemetery lists, and photo copies of all the index cards for Westmorland County in the Dictionary Card Catalogue of the Salt Lake City Genealogical Library.

This book would be most helpful to one searching in Westmorland County and we highly recommend it.

WESTMORLAND COUNTY PENNSYLVANIA AREA KEY, by Florence Clint, 1975. 87 pp., cardstock cover. $8.00 from Area Keys, P.O. Box 19465, Denver, CO 80219.

This Atlas will be in our Library for your reference work as soon as it has been repaired. We have several Atlases and they contain a lot of information. If any of you have an old Atlas that you would copy the Early Settlers for us to publish, get in touch with the Editor. We have found that these have been of a great help to persons in their research.

You will find School records from many extinct country schools in various State Historical Societies. They are a valuable source of information. Some School Records will show who visited school, on what day and their address. This will help pinpoint a family in a certain area at a certain date.

Some ministers always kept records of all of their marriages, baptisms, and burials. These records are very valuable as a source of information.

Neosho County, Kansas is located in the South

Eastern part of Kansas where a lot of early Kans history will be found. Some of the earliest persons in Kansas settled there and then worked their way on in- to other parts of the State.

Do not overlook this possibility when searching for persons that came to Kansas by the southern route.
